MICHELLE ELLIOT

- THE ARTISTE PROFILE

St. Lucian born artistes Michelle Elliot hails from Vigie, Castries from a family with a seafaring and restaurateur heritage.

Michelle is a self taught artistes who on a trip to Maui, Hawaii about 20 years ago, was inspired by resident artistes in that island. On coming back to St. Lucia she started to paint and realized the talent that she herself had and her paintings were being appreciated by friends and family and eventually the public to whom she started to sell her work.

About 12 years ago whilst running the family restaurant she desired specially designed crockery and so began delving into creating her own ceramics. Self taught in this craft, she is now known for her a unique line of ceramics which is all handmade and hand painted.

The island of St. Lucia which is her home, is her greatest inspiration. She describes her work as "naïve and whimsical" with lots of colour which shows the vibrancy, energy and passion that Michelle is made of.

This innovative artistes also has designed and created a line of silk screen printing fabrics.

Michelle has since exhibited her paintings in Cagne Sur Mer (French Riviera), Santo Domingo and locally in St. Lucia.

The Wild Orchid Design team headed by Michelle has its production studios at The Pink Plantation House situated at Chef Harry Drive on the Morne in Castries, St. Lucia.

It was on searching for a house with a historical background to house her studios that she and her sister stumbled across the beautiful French Colonial home and have created a home for all her designs combined with the gardens and restaurant which makes for a great place to visit. Visitors are welcome to come and and meet the artiste Michelle Elliot as she is usually available at lunchtime 11:30am - 3:00pm.
